How we can help

If you would like support so that your patients living with any terminal illness can be discharged home safely and quickly, Marie Curie Fast Track Palliative Care Senior Nurses are here to help.

Our senior nurses are based at the Marie Curie Hospice, Glasgow. They’ll work with you, and other healthcare professionals in the hospital and community, to assess and arrange the care and support your patients need once they’re back home.

This includes support for up to seven days from Marie Curie Health and Personal Care Assistants. They are available between 8.30am and 8pm, seven days a week.
Who to refer to our service

Our palliative care fast track discharge service complements other existing community services offered by the local district nursing teams, home care staff and the overnight nursing care provided by Marie Curie Nurses.

You may refer your patients if they:

- are aged 18 or older and live within the Glasgow City boundary
- have a terminal diagnosis and end of life care needs
- want to be, and be able to be safely, cared for at home, with prior agreement from their GP, primary care team or multi-disciplinary team
- may have family members who need extra support caring for them
- can avoid admission to hospital or a hospice with a referral

If you wish to refer patients aged between 16 and 18, please discuss it with our senior nurse as they may be able to offer this service to them.
